BOCA
RATON

Before There's a Blueprint, There's an Idea.

A visionary collaboration. Introducing the team behind Glass House Boca Raton.

Before there's a blueprint, there's an idea. A vision of a building, and the people who'll live inside it. Our development process begins by building a team of the most talented, experienced, and creative collaborators in their respective fields. Working with respected and accountable architects, designers, and consultants ensures we create something built to last.

The core development team includes Noam Ziv of RED-C Group, Adam Gottbetter of ASG Development, and Ilan Zaken & Ido Zaken of ZI Cubed. The partners bring together their extensive backgrounds in real estate development, business development, and project management to create the acclaimed Glass House Boca Raton. We currently live and work in South Florida and are attuned to the changing needs and desires of our purchasers. We're making a long-term commitment in South Florida's vibrant real estate market and particularly the communities of Palm Beach and Broward Counties.

As developers, we have sacrosanct philosophies that drive our process. Including creative partners right from the outset of a project gains the benefit of their insights and expertise from concept to drawings. Experience shows that including professionals early in the project helps reduce delays and cost overruns later.

We seek to create luxury projects that address unmet desires in the market. We search for great locations with proximity to stores, restaurants, the beach, and transportation. We build private spaces that insulate residents from the noise of everyday life in tranquil buildings. We focus on refined, boutique residential condominiums, and most recently, Glass House Boca Raton exemplifies that mission, a project designed by a team of visionaries, including award-winning architecture and design by garciastromberg and Florida's leading construction firm, Kaufman Lynn Construction.
