As part of the agreement, Glass House Boca Raton residents will receive a complimentary Director Circle membership, an extension of the Museum's prestigious Visionary Circle tier. Director Circle members are part of a distinguished group that enjoys a deeper, more personal connection to the Museum and its leadership. The membership grants exclusive access to curated events and premium experiences, creating meaningful opportunities to engage more fully with arts and culture in Boca Raton.

Among the benefits of the Director Circle membership is a private, behind-the-scenes tour led by the Museum's Director or Chief Curator, offering Glass House Boca Raton residents a closer look at the collection, exhibitions, and the vision that brings them to life. The offering complements Glass House Boca Raton's own Visionary Circle residential lifestyle program, which connects residents to the best of what Boca Raton has to offer.

"We are thrilled to have teamed up with Glass House Boca Raton in what we believe can become a new model of cultural partnership," said Dr. Ena Heller, Director & CEO at the Boca Raton Museum of Art. "This collaboration reflects our mission to bring art and culture to the forefront of life in our community."

The Boca Raton Museum of Art and Glass House Boca Raton will also collaborate on an Art in Public Places initiative, extending the Museum's presence beyond its walls through curated installations, rotating works and site-specific experiences within the Glass House Boca Raton community, bringing art into everyday residential life in downtown Boca Raton. Additional details about the initiative will be announced as the partnership develops.

"Glass House Boca Raton was designed to offer residents not just a home, but an elevated way of life," said Noam Ziv, CEO and partner of 280 E Palmetto Park Road, LLC.
